Biography

Miranda L. Gahn

Founder | Aviation Litigation Attorney & Army Aviator

Miranda L. Gahn is the co-founder of Lex Aero LLP, an aviation-focused law firm with offices in Ohio and Florida. Licensed in both states, she represents clients in civil aviation litigation, federal employment disputes, and complex matters involving regulatory and operational aviation issues. She also litigates claims under the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA).

Miranda's practice is informed by more than two decades of military service as a commissioned Army officer and UH-60 Black Hawk pilot. She currently serves in senior leadership as a Lieutenant Colonel within the Florida Army National Guard, where she has held command in airfield operations roles overseeing aviation safety, airspace management, and air traffic control operations. Her operational aviation background provides practical insight into cockpit decision-making, human factors, and regulatory compliance—perspectives that directly inform her litigation strategy.

Prior to founding Lex Aero LLP in 2024, Miranda served as Associate General Counsel for Commercial Contracts – Labor & Employment at Newfold Digital and held leadership roles at GE Aviation, where she managed complex commercial aviation portfolios and negotiated high-value, long-term agreements. Her combined experience in litigation, corporate counsel roles, and operational aviation enables her to advise clients with both legal precision and operational fluency.

Miranda earned her Juris Doctor from Capital University Law School and holds a Bachelor of Science in Psychology from Utah State University
